ELECTION FEVER GRIPS DHAKA

People from all sections of life--women, men, young and old voted as the country held its first parliamentary election since the 2024 uprising, with 173 million citizens seeking a return to democracy after years of turmoil and autocratic rule. It was a festive atmosphere all around with families and friends queued up to exercise their right to franchise throughout the day amid heightened security.

TARIQUE PULLS OFF A STUNNING SWEEP

BNP Chairman
Tarique Rahman

BNP Chairman Tarique Rahman is set to become the next prime minister after his party swept to a stunning landslide in peaceful and festive election, winning more than two-thirds of the parliamentary seats. Tarique took over leadership of the party from his mother, former prime minister Khaleda Zia, a giant of Bangladesh politics, 10 days after her death.

His father, late president Ziaur Rahman who founded BNP in 1978, had been assassinated in a military coup in 1981 when Tarique was a teenager.

The third triennial assessment is currently underway ahead of the final graduation.

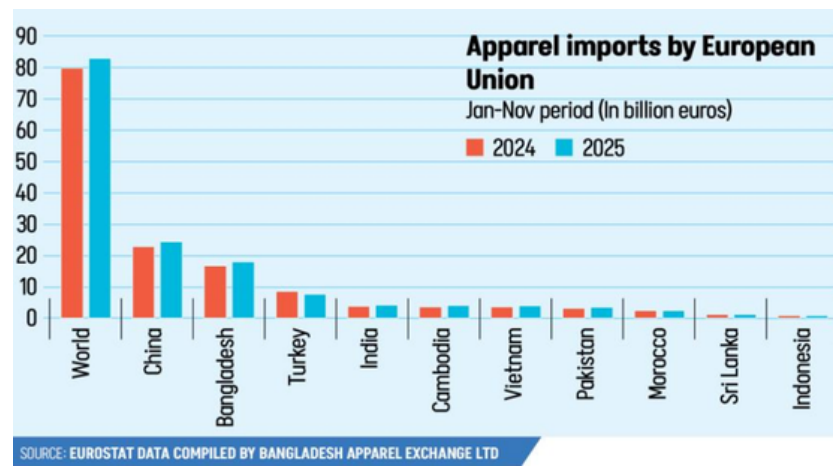

The new government formed by BNP will seek to defer Bangladesh's graduation from the Least Developed Country (LDC) category to developing-nation status by at least three years, Commerce Minister Khandakar Abdul Muktadir said.

Bangladesh is scheduled to graduate from the LDC category to developing-nation status on November 24 this year, having already met all three UN criteria - income, human assets, and economic and environmental vulnerability twice in previous triennial assessments by the UN.
